

COMMUNITY MAPPING WORKSHOP

MADISON COUNTY

JANUARY 29-30, 2025

Acknowledgments

Community Mapping is a model unique to Kentucky that integrates the Sequential Intercept Model and Upstream Model to facilitate system mapping across the criminal justice, juvenile justice, and child welfare systems. This innovative approach enhances coordination, identifies service gaps, and strengthens community responses.

The Kentucky Judicial Commission on Mental Health extends our deepest gratitude to the National Center for State Courts (NCSC) for their invaluable guidance and leadership in supporting Kentucky's development, training, and implementation of the Community Mapping Project.

We sincerely thank the Kentucky Administrative Office of the Courts (AOC) specifically, the Office of Statewide Programs, Department of Family and Juvenile Services, Department of Pretrial Services, and Department of Specialty Courts for their leadership, collaboration, and commitment to sustaining Community Mapping for Kentucky courts and their communities. This work would not be possible without the dedicated staff of the Kentucky Administrative Office of the Courts, whose coordination, expertise, and support ensure the success of the Community Mapping Workshops.

Additionally, we extend our heartfelt appreciation to Judge Cole Adams Maier, Judge Kristin Clouse, and Judge David Ward, who served as the lead judges for the event.

We also extend our sincere appreciation to Brightview Health on Day 1 and Mountain Comprehensive Care Centers on Day 2 for providing catering for attendees and to the American Legion Post 12 for graciously offering venue space for this important event.

Finally, we thank all participants of the Community Mapping Workshop for their engagement and commitment to strengthening Kentucky's justice and child welfare systems. Your contributions help drive meaningful change for our communities.

Introduction

On January 29-30, 2025, representatives from Madison County took part in a Community Mapping Workshop in Richmond, Kentucky. The event was facilitated by Jennifer VanOrt-Hazzard, Behavioral Health Liaison for the Kentucky Judicial Commission on Mental Health, and Heather Vice, Behavioral Health

Liaison for the Department of Specialty Courts. A total of 76 participants from various partnering agencies and organizations engaged in the workshop. This report provides background information and a summary of the workshop's key discussions and outcomes.

Community Mapping integrates the Sequential Intercept Model (SIM) and the National Center for State Courts' (NCSC) Upstream Model, two strategic planning approaches designed to enhance cross-system collaboration and reduce justice system involvement. These frameworks are most effective when applied by a diverse team of stakeholders, including representatives from mental health, substance use services, law enforcement, pretrial services, courts, jails, community corrections, housing, healthcare, social services, individuals with lived experience, and family members.

Recognizing the need for a comprehensive approach, the Kentucky Judicial Commission on Mental Health (Judicial Commission) launched an initiative to implement SIM and Upstream throughout Kentucky. Since 2022, the Commonwealth has engaged in statewide criminal justice, child welfare, and juvenile justice mapping to identify existing resources and opportunities for system improvements. More details on this initiative are available on the Judicial Commission's website.

To streamline the process and ease the burden on local communities, the Judicial Commission partnered with NCSC to conduct SIM and Upstream mapping simultaneously. Through this collaboration, Community Mapping was developed, and in June 2024, NCSC conducted a facilitator training in Frankfort, Kentucky, preparing key staff and leaders to guide and implement Community Mapping efforts effectively.

Overview of Community Mapping

Community Mapping was explicitly developed for Kentucky to help communities identify ways for individuals and families to access essential resources, services, and support without becoming involved in the justice system. By combining the Sequential Intercept Model (SIM) and Upstream, this initiative strengthens local planning and collaboration to improve community-based solutions.

SIM is a framework to help communities develop a comprehensive picture of how adults with mental illness and substance use disorders enter and move through the criminal justice system along six distinct intercept points.¹ SIM depicts the criminal justice system as a series of points of “interception” at which an intervention can be made to divert people from the justice system and prevent them from entering or penetrating deeper into the criminal justice system.² Using the model, a community can identify local resources and gaps in services, decide priorities for change, and develop targeted strategies to increase connections to treatment and recovery support services. For more information on SIM, please see Appendix A.

Upstream is similar to SIM, however, its focus is on how children and families enter and move through the dependency and delinquency systems. By leveraging judicial leadership, court resources, and child welfare and juvenile justice partnerships, Upstream enhances community collaboration and coordination through mapping existing resources, identifying opportunities, and creating a strategic action plan informed by the community map. The collaboration aims to strengthen communities, prevent child maltreat and out-of-home placement, reduce court involvement, and support safe and healthy families. Through a family-centered lens, Upstream focuses on four domains: Community, Families with Risk Factors, Families with Allegations, and Families with Court Involvement. For more information on Upstream, please see Appendix B.

The Community Mapping framework focuses the community around five areas:

1. What resources are available to the entire community?

This area includes all resources, services, and supports available to the entire community. It is grounded in the social determinants of health, which refer to community factors linked to improved health outcomes and overall quality of life.

2. What resources target protective and preventive risk factors?

This area focuses on programs and services aimed at reducing risk factors for adverse outcomes, such as abuse or neglect, criminal behavior, or substance use. Key resources include screening and assessment, mental health and substance use treatment, cognitive behavioral therapy, trauma-informed care, housing assistance, and support for new and young parents.

3. What resources are available at initial systems contact?

This area highlights resources and interventions available when individuals and families first engage with a system, such as arrest, law enforcement encounters, 911 calls, hotline calls, or referrals to juvenile court.

4. What resources are available to individuals and families with court involvement?

This area focuses on resources, services, and supports for individuals and families involved in the court system, jail, or detention. It includes court-led initiatives, such as specialty courts and case coordination, designed to support individuals throughout the judicial process.

5. What resources are available to support individuals and families returning to or reentering the community?

This category explores services designed to support individuals and families as they transition back into the community. Examples include community corrections programs, educational liaisons, and reunification services.

During the Community Mapping Workshop, participants engage in facilitated discussions to identify existing resources, as well as gaps and opportunities for improvement in each focus area. As part of this process, attendees create visual process maps for child welfare, juvenile justice, and criminal justice systems, ensuring a shared understanding of how individuals enter and navigate these systems. Participants then prioritize key opportunities through a voting process, with the highest-ranked items identified as top community priorities. On the final day, attendees self-select a priority area and collaborate to develop an action plan to drive meaningful improvements.

Madison County Community Mapping Workshop

During the first half of the Community Mapping Workshop, facilitators provided an overview of the Sequential Intercept Model (SIM) and Upstream, along with state and local data on relevant topics to set the stage for discussions. Participants were asked to identify and describe existing resources, services, and supports available to individuals and families, highlight opportunities for improvement, and map out the processes by which children, youth, individuals, and families enter and move through the system.

Throughout the second half of the day, participants identified four key priorities for action planning in Madison County:

- Expanding access to affordable and safe housing
- Development of a one-stop community center
- Expanded funding and access to year-round emergency and long-term housing shelter
- Development of a youth-crisis stabilization center

Participants then self-selected a priority area and collaborated in breakout groups to develop actionable strategies for addressing it.

For a detailed overview of workshop activities, please refer to the agenda in Appendix C. A list of workshop attendees is provided in Appendix D.

Defining the Current Landscape of Madison County

During a Community Mapping Workshop, available data is used to ensure all participants develop a shared understanding of the individuals in their community, their needs, and the extent to which they interact with the child welfare or juvenile justice systems. By viewing, discussing, and interpreting data as a group, communities can identify gaps in information, test assumptions, recognize strengths, and highlight challenges. In this workshop, facilitators presented data publicly available sources, including information obtained from the AOC. The entire data package can be found in Appendix E.

Resources, Opportunities, and Processes Across the Domains

Attendees participated in a facilitated discussion to compile existing resources and supports, identify opportunities for improvement, and outline key processes. Discussions began with all participants focusing on the domains of Protective and Preventative Community Resources and Initial Systems Contact. A complete list of workshop attendees can be found in Appendix D.

Participants then discussed the three focus areas of: adult criminal justice, juvenile justice, or child welfare, to describe system processes. Process maps can be found in Appendix F (Criminal Justice), Appendix G (Child Welfare), and Appendix H (Juvenile Justice).

“The community mapping event was a constructive step toward building a stronger, more cohesive community where every individual has access to the resources and support that is needed to flourish.

The time and energy dedicated by participants—whether they participated as nonprofit representatives, service providers, or community leaders—demonstrate an enduring commitment to improving the lives of those in Madison County. When we come together as a community to share information, resources, and insights, we are not just mapping physical services but also building a network of care, trust, and empowerment.

The insights shared and the time invested by everyone involved will have a lasting impact, not only in improving the immediate access to services but also in fostering a long-term culture of collaboration and mutual support.”

- Judge Cole Adams Maier

Participants then came back together to map resources and opportunities in the domains of Individuals and Families with Court Involvement, and Individuals and Families Returning to or Reentering the Community.

Participants identified the following resources and opportunities in the domains of Community, Risk Factors, Initial Systems Contact, Individuals and Families with Court Involvement, and Individuals and Families Returning to or Reentering the Community.

Community Table 1: Resources in the Community

Protective and Preventative Community Resources
Addiction Recovery Centers - Recovery and housing support, second chance employment
Adult Day Center
Baptist Health - mentorship program in hospital
Berea College - Low-income and first-generation programs
Blueprint for Safety
Brightview
Center for Excellence in Learning - Berea College (mentorship and barrier relief)
Certification and licensing programs (Berea and ECU colleges)
Children's Champion
Churches - Faith based support, financial assistance
Community Action Agency
Community Collaboration for Children (CCC)
Dry Dock - Support meetings
Early Start Head Start - therapy, intervention services for youth
Eastern Kentucky University - Post-secondary education, adult learning programs, prior learning credits, resource assistance, student assistance, intervention team
Eastern Scholar House
ECU Psychology Clinic
Enrich - Resource lists, developing resource hub
Ethan Health - Outpatient support services, meals, transportation, employment connections, needle exchange
Federated Transportation
Family Resource and Youth Services Centers (FRYSC)
God's Food Pantry
Goodwill Opportunity Center - employment, case management, document assistance
Health Access Nurturing Development Services (HANDS)
Harm Reduction Program - Needle exchange, Narcan, education and resources
Hope Food Pantry
Hope's Wings - Domestic violence/ sexual assault/ stalking resources and services

Housing Shelter
Isaiah House
Kentucky Career Center
Kentucky Recovery Centers
Kentucky Transitional Assistance Program (KTAP) (Department of Community Based Services) - Cash assistance, transportation, job search assistance, relocation assistance
KY Career Center - Employment, Transition to Transformation, youth programs (in/out of school), supportive services
KY Counseling Center
KY River Foothills - Public transportation, veteran services, tax assistance, case management
Last Mile to Work Program
Liberty Place - Recovery housing
Madison Home - Shelter for families and youth

Volunteers of America
Whitehouse Clinic - Healthcare, pharmacy, psychiatric care, substance use treatment, MOUD services, HIV testing
Young Men's Christian Association (YMCA)
Yonder Behavioral Health
Youth community sports

Table 2: Opportunities for Risk Factors

Protective and Preventative Opportunities for Community
Access to affordable housing - More units, removal of rental barriers
Affordable childcare and childcare - Alternative hours of operation
Care continuum for adults - between acute/crisis and standard outpatient
Casey's Law - Funding source

Casey's Law - More evaluators needed
Foster care options for animals when individuals are going to treatment
Hygiene stations - Showers, laundry, etc.
Mental illness awareness - Interactive resource guide, include employers in education efforts
Non-Faith based services - Mental health/housing/recovery services
One-stop resource hub
Organization of church resources
Prevention services for families
Psychiatric crisis transportation
Residential mental health services
Supportive employment - Removing barriers (criminal records stipulations), resources, clothing closets
Supportive housing - Partnerships with landlords, voucher programs
Supportive housing partnerships - Case management, behavioral health services
Transitional housing (Long-term without day-to-day applications)
Transportation access - Public transit, funding
Year-round emergency shelter and housing
Youth sports/extracurricular financial aid - Equipment assistance
Youth support networks - Expand teen center programs, UNITE initiative support

Missing Partners

In addition to identifying resources and opportunities, participants recognized key partners who were not present at the Community Mapping Workshop but would be valuable for future discussions and advancing this work. The missing partners include:

Elected Officials
School System Representatives / Board of Education
Commonwealth Attorney
Aetna- Managed Care Provider
Kentucky River Foothills
Adult Protective Services
Family Resource and Youth Services Centers (FRYSC)
Food Banks
Shannyn Drummond
Public Library Representative
VA Representative
Department of Juvenile Justice

Identifying Priorities and Developing Action Plans

Facilitators provided guidance on selecting priorities and developing action plans. Each participant received three votes to indicate their top choices. Similar opportunities were grouped, and the four highest-ranked priorities were selected for action planning.

The four priorities identified in Madison County were access to affordable housing, one-stop community resource hub, year-round shelter and emergency housing, and youth crisis stabilization services. Participants chose a priority area to focus on and collaborated with others to develop high-level action plans. Each team then presented their plans to the whole group, allowing for questions and feedback. Completed action plans can be found in Appendices I through L.

Access to Affordable Housing

The Access to Affordable Housing subgroup is committed to reducing the county's unhoused population by 5% by the end of the 2025 calendar year, focusing on sustainable, collaborative solutions to improve housing access and stability for vulnerable individuals and families.

One-Stop Community Resource Hub

The One-Stop Community Resource Hub subgroup is focused on establishing a centrally located center that brings together representatives from key community resource agencies. This initiative also includes the development of a live, real-time resource directory and a user-friendly mobile app to streamline access to county services. Notably, aspects of this project are already partially underway through the efforts of another organization, presenting a valuable opportunity for collaboration and alignment to enhance community impact.

Year-Round Shelter and Emergency Housing

The Year-Round Emergency and Shelter Housing subgroup is interested in the development of a new shelter facility in Madison County while exploring immediate solutions such as extending the certificate of occupancy for Madison Homes. In parallel, the group is focused on designing a transitional housing program that supports individuals in moving from emergency shelter into stable, long-term housing.

Youth Crisis Stabilization Services

The Youth Crisis Stabilization Services subgroup is dedicated to identifying a suitable location in Madison County for a youth stabilization center that serves as a critical step-down option for youth who do not meet criteria for hospitalization but still require intensive support. The group is actively exploring existing models, potential implementation barriers, and strategies to fill this service gap. Key considerations include transportation solutions requiring credentialed providers, as well as securing ongoing funding to ensure sustainability.

Next Steps and Recommendations

Kentucky has a strong history of embracing change, and the Kentucky Judicial Commission on Mental Health has taken a comprehensive approach to engagement through various initiatives leading up to this report and its recommendations.

1. Reach out to the individuals who were missing to engage them.

Community Mapping participants identified key system partners who were not present but whose expertise could help advance the priority areas (see page 16 of this report). As work progresses, it is crucial to engage these individuals and continually assess, “Who is missing?” When bringing in new partners, provide an overview of Community Mapping, explain the priority areas and action plans, and highlight the value of their participation and potential roles.

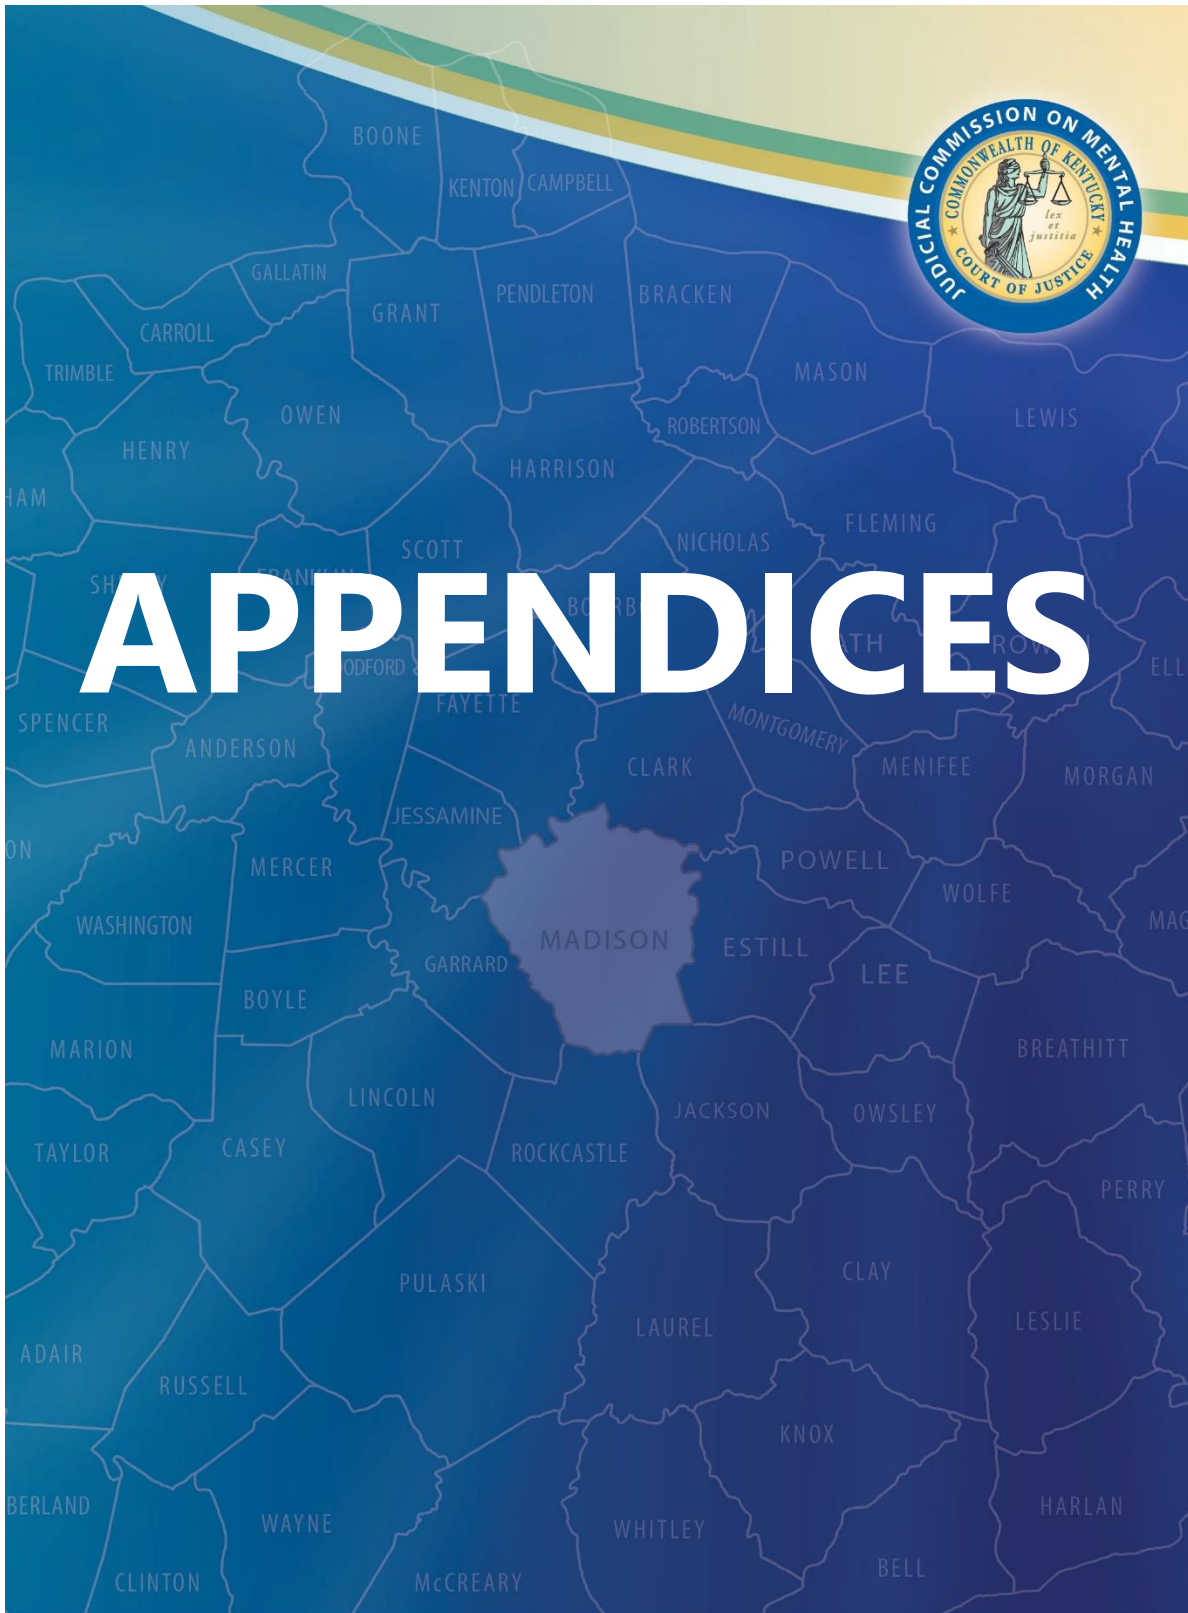

Designate Community Mapping participants to reach out to missing partners and incorporate this task into the Action Plan to track progress effectively.

2. Plan for disseminating the work.

Develop a strategy to inform the community about Community Mapping, share priority areas and Action Plans, and provide updates on progress. This plan may involve existing community groups and collaboratives or by engaging the broader community. Communicating this work helps attract new partners, align with ongoing initiatives, leverage available resources, and highlight successes and advancements.

3. Continue working on Action Plans and reporting on progress.

The group's dedication to their work and commitment to collaboration is clear. To ensure continued progress, we recommend establishing a structured plan for oversight of the Action Plans and defining how progress will be monitored. Regular collaborative meetings already taking place present an opportunity to incorporate Action Plan updates as a standing agenda item. These meetings should also serve as a platform for discussing challenges, identifying solutions, and addressing barriers. Implementing a system for ongoing monitoring and evaluation will help track progress, highlight areas for improvement, and allow for necessary adjustments, ultimately supporting the successful implementation of initiatives and driving meaningful outcomes.

APPENDIX A Sequential Intercept Mapping (SIM)

THE SEQUENTIAL INTERCEPT MODEL

Advancing Community-Based Solutions for Justice-Involved People with Mental and Substance Use Disorders

The Sequential Intercept Model

Key Issues at Each Intercept

Intercept 0

Mobile crisis outreach teams and co-responders. Behavioral health practitioners who can respond to people experiencing a mental or substance use crisis or co-respond to a police encounter.

Emergency department diversion. Emergency departments (EDs) can provide triage with behavioral health providers, embedded mobile crisis staff, and/or peer specialist staff to provide support to people in crisis.

Police-behavioral health collaborations. Police officers can build partnerships with behavioral health agencies along with the community and learn how to interact with individuals experiencing a crisis.

Intercept 1

Dispatcher training. Dispatchers can identify mental or substance use crisis situations and pass that information along so that Crisis Intervention Team officers can respond to the call.

Specialized police responses. Police officers can learn how to interact with individuals experiencing a crisis in ways that promote engagement in treatment and build partnerships between law enforcement and the community.

Intervening with frequent utilizers and providing follow-up after the crisis. Police officers, crisis services, and hospitals can reduce frequent utilizers of 911 and ED services through specialized responses.

Intercept 2

Screening for mental and substance use disorders. Brief screens can be administered universally by non-clinical staff at jail booking, police holding cells, court lock ups, and prior to the first court appearance.

Data-matching initiatives between the jail and community-based behavioral health providers.

Pretrial supervision and diversion services to reduce episodes of incarceration. Risk-based pre-trial services can reduce incarceration of defendants with low risk of criminal behavior or failure to appear in court.

Intercept 3

Treatment courts for high-risk/high-need individuals. Treatment courts or specialized dockets can be developed, examples of which include adult drug courts, mental health courts, and Veterans treatment courts.

Jail-based programming and health care services. Jail health care providers are constitutionally required to provide behavioral health and medical services to detainees needing treatment, including providing access to medication-assisted treatment (MAT) for individuals with substance use disorders.

Collaboration with the Veterans Justice Outreach specialist from the Veterans Health Administration.

Intercept 4

Transition planning by the jail or in-reach providers. Transition planning improves reentry outcomes by organizing services around an individual's needs in advance of release.

Medication and prescription access upon release from jail or prison. Inmates should be provided with a minimum of 30 days' medication at release and have prescriptions in hand upon release, including MAT medications prescribed for substance use disorders.

Warm hand-offs from corrections to providers increase engagement in services. Case managers that pick an individual up and transport them directly to services will increase positive outcomes.

Intercept 5

Specialized community supervision caseloads of people with mental disorders.

MAT for substance use disorders. MAT approaches can reduce relapse episodes and overdoses among individuals returning from detention.

Access to recovery supports, benefits, housing, and competitive employment. Housing and employment are as important to justice-involved individuals as access to mental and substance use treatment services. Removing criminal justice-specific barriers to access is critical.

Implementing Intercept 0

Crisis Response

Crisis response models provide short-term help to individuals who are experiencing mental or substance use crisis and can divert individuals from the criminal justice system. Crisis response models include:

- Certified Community Behavioral Health Clinics
- Crisis Care Teams
- Crisis Response Centers
- Mobile Crisis Teams

Police Strategies

Proactive police responses with disadvantaged and vulnerable populations are a unique method of diverting individuals from the criminal justice system. Proactive police response models include:

- Crisis Intervention Teams
- Homeless Outreach Teams
- Serial Inebriate Programs
- Systemwide Mental Assessment Response Teams

Sequential Intercept Model as a Strategic Planning Tool

The Sequential Intercept Model is most effective when used as a community strategic planning tool to assess available resources, determine gaps in services, and plan for community change. These activities are best accomplished by a team of stakeholders that cross over multiple systems, including mental health, substance use, law enforcement, pretrial services, courts, jails, community corrections, housing, health, social services, people with lived experiences, family members, and many others. Employed as a strategic planning tool, communities can use the Sequential Intercept Model to:

1. Develop a comprehensive picture of how people with mental and substance use disorders flow through the criminal justice system along six distinct intercept points: (0) Community Services, (1) Law Enforcement, (2) Initial Detention and Initial Court Hearings, (3) Jails and Courts, (4) Reentry, and (5) Community Corrections
2. Identify gaps, resources, and opportunities at each intercept for adults with mental and substance use disorders
3. Develop priorities for action designed to improve system and service-level responses for adults with mental and substance use disorders

Policy Research Associates

We are a national leader in behavioral health services research and its application to social change. Since 1987, we have assisted over 200 communities nationwide through a broad range of services to guide policy and practice.

We conduct meaningful, quality work through evaluation and research, technical assistance and training, and facilitation and event planning to improve the lives of people who are disadvantaged. We strive to make an impact in the field and promote a positive work environment.

History and Impact of the Sequential Intercept Model

The Sequential Intercept Model (SIM) was developed over several years in the early 2000s by Mark Munetz, MD, and Patricia A. Griffin, PhD, along with Henry J. Steadman, PhD, of Policy Research Associates, Inc. (PRA). The SIM was developed as a conceptual model to inform community-based responses to the involvement of people with mental and substance use disorders in the criminal justice system.

After years of refinement and testing, several versions of the model emerged. The "linear" depiction of the model found in this publication was first conceptualized by Dr. Steadman of PRA in 2004¹ through his leadership of a National Institute of Mental Health-funded Small Business Innovative Research grant awarded to PRA. The linear SIM model was first published by PRA in 2005² through its contract to operate the GAINS Center on behalf of the Substance Abuse and Mental Health Services Administration (SAMHSA). The "filter" and "revolving door" versions of the model were formally introduced in a 2006 article in the peer-reviewed journal Psychiatric Services authored by Drs. Munetz and Griffin.³ A full history of the development of the SIM can be found in the book The Sequential Intercept Model and Criminal Justice: Promoting Community Alternatives for Individuals with Serious Mental Illness.⁴

With funding from the National Institute of Mental Health, PRA developed the linear version of the SIM as an applied strategic planning tool to improve cross-system collaborations to reduce involvement in the justice system by people with mental and substance use disorders. Through this grant, PRA, working with Dr. Griffin and others, produced an interactive, facilitated workshop based on the linear version of the SIM to assist cities and counties in determining how people with mental and substance use disorders flow from the community into the criminal justice system and eventually return to the community.

During the mapping process, the community stakeholders are introduced to evidence-based practices and emerging best practices from around the country. The culmination of the mapping process is the creation of a local strategic plan based on the gaps, resources, and priorities identified by community stakeholders.

Since its development, the use of the SIM as a strategic planning tool has grown tremendously. In the 21st Century Cures Act,⁵ the 114th Congress of the United States of America identified the SIM, specifically the mapping workshop, as a means for promoting community-based strategies to reduce the justice system involvement of people with mental and substance use disorders. SAMHSA has supported community-based strategies to improve public health and public safety outcomes for justice-involved people with mental and substance use disorders through SIM mapping workshop national solicitations and by providing SIM mapping workshops as technical assistance to its criminal justice and behavioral health grant programs. In addition, the Bureau of Justice Assistance has supported the SIM mapping workshop by including it as a priority for the Justice and Mental Health Collaboration Program grants.

With the advent of Intercept 0, the SIM continues to increase its utility as a strategic planning tool for communities who want to address the justice involvement of people with mental and substance use disorders.⁶
